Brett Mandel enters his 13th season with the Comets in 2008. Brett, who serves as the GPMABL Commissioner, is the only Comet left from the team's Black Sox days.

Mandel holds GPMABL record for games played (130), ranks second in hits (128) and runs (95). He is one of only three men who will have competed in every GPMABL season, following 2008. He has been a part of four division champions and both GMABL Championships for the club.

Brett is the Executive Director of the non-profit agency, Philadelphia Forward. A well-known member of the Philadelphia political community, Mandel sites his talents as being able to touch his nose with his tongue and juggle. Mandel has been instrumental in the league's success, including luring the Russian National Baseball team to compete against a team of GPMABL players during the 2007 season.

Brett currently resides in Philadelphia with his wife, Laura, and children Rose (6), Ariel (5) and Sidney (2).
